

The future is in your hands

Conference on the Future of Europe

Find out how you can get involved

What is the Conference?

The Conference on the Future of Europe is the first transnational discussion with Europeans from all walks of life on how to address Europe's challenges together. This is an opportunity to think about what citizens and civil society want for the European Union.

The European Parliament, the Council, and the European Commission have committed to listen and follow up on the recommendations made.

What can you do?

Communicate about the Conference - everybody is invited to join.

- Use the Conference's visuals on the platform and on the European Parliament's website and share them with your networks.
- Inform your networks about the Conference platform and the events planned
- Use the Conference's official hashtag #TheFutureIsYours and share it with your networks

Create your own event.

- Organise your own events - including public debates and consultations with citizens
- Promote your events by adding them to the Conference platform
- Make your event as inclusive and accessible as possible for all citizens

Contribute with your ideas on the multilingual digital Conference platform.

- Make your ideas heard via the Conference platform - designed as a hub for citizens' ideas
- Upload conclusions and reports of your event onto the Conference's platform
- Share your own ideas or support others' ideas - make your voice heard

What will be the outcome?

The future is in your hands.

All of the ideas gathered and reports on events will be published on the platform openly and transparently. These reports will then directly influence the discussions in the European Citizens' Panels as well as in the Plenaries, where citizens will enter into a dialogue with national and European decision makers. By Spring 2022, the Conference will provide guidance on the future of Europe to the European institutions.
